“With the launch of earnings-based indexes and ETFs, WisdomTree takes fundamentally weighted indexing a step closer to its ‘tipping point.’ We believe this will happen when investors fully recognize the structural flaws of market cap-weighted indexes,” commented Jonathan Steinberg, CEO of WisdomTree Investments.

Bruce Lavine, President and COO of WisdomTree Investments added, “WisdomTree now offers two complementary families. Investors seeking the potential for income-generating yields and relatively lower volatility may want to consider the Dividend Family. Those seeking broad market exposure or exposure to traditional sector classifications through companies with an earnings track record may want to consider the Earnings Family. Both families are rooted in fundamentals and both are alternatives to market cap-weighted indexes and ETFs.”

The WisdomTree ETFs have gathered $2.4 billion in assets under management since launching in June of 2006.
