DOL

In the past few decades, index-based investment strategies have gained traction for obtaining exposure to broad asset classes. Numerous benefits of the passively managed exchange-traded fund (ETF) wrapper—including easy access to diversification, generally low fees in comparison to active strategies, tax efficiency and daily transparency of holdings—have helped these types of strategies gain in popularity. While the first set of indexes were traditional market cap-weighted offerings¹, a growing body of evidence suggests that a rules-based approach to indexing can add significant value.

Take dividends as an example. At WisdomTree, we believe that dividends provide an objective measure of a company’s health and profitability—one that cannot be affected by accounting methods or government decisions. We have been weighting by dividends since WisdomTree launched its first ETFs in 2006. This methodology of weighting by their Dividend Stream[®] can help magnify the effects dividends have on performance, potentially increasing return or reducing volatility² compared to traditional market cap-weighted strategies. A potential benefit of this approach to investing is evident in the live performance track record of the WisdomTree International LargeCap Dividend Index.

This chart illustrates how a hypothetical investment of $10,000 might have grown. The calculations assume reinvestment of dividends and do not reflect transaction and other costs. Past performance is not indicative of future results.

Index performance does not represent actual fund or portfolio performance. A fund or portfolio may differ significantly from the securities included in the index. Index performance assumes reinvestment of dividends but does not reflect any management fees, transaction costs or other expenses that would be incurred by a portfolio or fund, or brokerage commissions on transactions in fund shares. Such fees, expenses and commissions could reduce returns.

A Methodology That Tilts Total Returns Toward Dividends

Most equity indexes have two components driving total returns—price return and dividend return. The price return reflects changes in the share prices of the underlying constituent, and the dividend return is a result of dividend payments. Dividend-focused methodologies tilt the profile of total returns toward dividends. The potential for risk-adjusted outperformance demonstrated by Wharton Professor Jeremy Siegel's research is the foundation upon which the WisdomTree International LargeCap Dividend Index was built. At its core, the methodology focuses on:

Stock Selection—Our dividend strategies start with a universe of all companies meeting WisdomTree's market capitalization and liquidity³ requirements. Next, we remove companies most at risk of cutting dividends from the starting universe based on quantitative risk screens. From there, we select dividend-paying companies and make any appropriate size cuts depending on the focus of the strategy (Large, Mid, Small)⁴.

Downside Risk Mitigation—By dividend weighting our strategy, the portfolio takes on some unique “lower beta” tilts relative to a market cap-weighted approach. The portfolio has tended to be over-weight higher-yielding sectors such as utilities, real estate and consumer staples, which are typically more defensive.

⁴ Stock Selection: Additional details and requirements for inclusion, are available in the Equity Index Methodology.

Performance is historical and does not guarantee future results. Current performance may be lower or higher than quoted. Investment returns and principal value of an investment will fluctuate so that an investor's shares, when redeemed, may be worth more or less than their original cost. Performance data for the most recent month-end is available at wisdomtree.com/investments.

WisdomTree shares are bought and sold at market price (not NAV) and are not individually redeemed from the Fund. Total returns are calculated using the daily 4:00pm EST net asset (NAV). Market price ("Price") returns reflect the midpoint of the bid/ask spread as of the close of trading on the exchange where Fund shares are listed. Market price returns do not represent the returns you would receive if you traded shares at other times.
