

The WisdomTree Chinese Yuan Fund seeks to achieve total returns reflective of both money market rates in China available to foreign investors and changes in value of the Chinese yuan relative to the U.S. dollar. Although the Fund invests in very short-term, investment grade instruments, the Fund is not a money market fund and it is not the objective of the Fund to maintain a constant share price.

The Chinese Yuan Fund generated a 1.00% return net of fees in the fourth quarter, outpacing the returns from the Chinese yuan by 0.16%. Each of the Fund's primary exposures made positive contributions to the Fund's quarterly returns, with CNH forwards leading the way. Overall, currency movements dominated interest returns as the yuan continued its steady appreciation against the U.S. dollar.

For 2013, the Fund returned 3.88%, adding 1.69% in value relative to changes in the Chinese yuan, which appreciated 2.19% against the U.S. dollar. China's external surpluses as well as better economic data and an increased focus on market factors in the Third Plenum benefited the currency.

Performance is historical and does not guarantee future results. Current performance may be lower or higher than quoted. Investment returns and principal value of an investment will fluctuate so that an investor's shares, when redeemed, maybe be worth more or less than their original cost. Performance data for the most recent month-end is available at www.wisdomtree.com.

WisdomTree shares are bought and sold at market price (not NAV) and are not individually redeemed from the Fund. Total Returns are calculated using the daily 4:00 p.m. EST net asset value (NAV). Market price returns reflect the midpoint of the bid/ask spread as of the close of trading on the exchange where Fund shares are listed. Market price returns do not represent the returns you would receive if you traded shares at other times.

*Slippage in calculation comes from timing, treatment of accruals as well as compounding mathematical issues which cannot be perfectly calculated.

There are risks associated with investing, including possible loss of principal. Foreign investing involves special risks, such as risk of loss from currency fluctuation or political or economic uncertainty. This Fund focuses its investments in China, thereby increasing the impact of events and developments associated with the region which can adversely affect performance. Investments in emerging or frontier markets are generally less liquid and less efficient than investments in developed markets and are subject to additional risks, such as risks of adverse governmental regulation and intervention or political developments.

Investments in currency involve additional special risks, such as credit risk and interest rate fluctuations. Derivative investments can be volatile and these investments may be less liquid than other securities, and more sensitive to the effect of varied economic conditions. As this Fund can have a high concentration in some issuers the Fund can be adversely impacted by changes affecting those issuers. Unlike typical exchange-traded Funds, there are no indexes that the Fund attempts to track or replicate. Thus, the ability of the Fund to achieve its objectives will depend on the effectiveness of the portfolio manager. Due to the investment strategy of this Fund it may make higher capital gain distributions than other ETFs. Please read the Fund's prospectus for specific details regarding the Fund's risk profile.

The JP Morgan Emerging Local Markets Index Plus - China uses a weighted basket of 1-mo, 2-mo, and 3-mo forward currency contracts collateralized with U.S. money market rates to proxy the total returns of an investment in the local-currency money market instruments. The returns are reported in U.S. dollar terms. Forward currency contracts are agreements to buy or sell a specific currency at a future date at a price set at the time of the contract. ¹Non-deliverable contracts are cash settled at contract expiration. ²Deliverable contracts allow for the physical delivery of a currency at contract expiration. ³Time deposits refer to currency deposited at a bank for a fixed amount of time at an agreed upon interest rate. Carry refers to the amount of return that accrues from investing in fixed income or currency forward contracts. Spot Currency return is the return based on currency appreciation. CNH is the Chinese yuan traded in Hong Kong. The official currency of the People's Republic of China is CNY, which is a managed, non-deliverable currency.
