

The WisdomTree Emerging Markets Corporate Bond Fund seeks to provide a high level of total return consisting of both income and capital appreciation through investments in the debt of emerging markets corporate issuers.

The Fund generated a net return of 1.83% on net asset value (NAV) during the second quarter, outperforming its reference benchmark, the JPMorgan Corporate Emerging Markets Bond Index Broad by 43 basis points (1.83% versus 1.43%). Since inception (March 8th, 2012), the Fund has outperformed its benchmark by 3 basis points on an annualized basis.

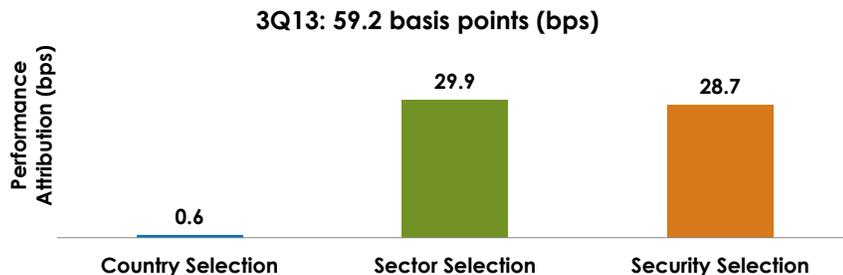

Emerging market (EM) corporates regained some of their losses incurred during Q2. Interest income served as the primary driver of Fund performance for the quarter. U.S. interest rates ended the quarter marginally higher after the Federal Reserve surprised markets by not "tapering" asset purchases.

Sector selection had the greatest impact on relative performance. The strategy's overweight to oil & gas and metals & mining companies performed well on the back of a rebound in commodity prices. Country exposure continued to have a limited impact on relative performance.

Security selection was also a significant driver of Fund performance. Over the course of the quarter, the Fund participated in a tender offer settling August 20th (Cemex, 5.20% weight as of 8/19) on favorable terms contributing to total returns. Additionally, the Fund increased its exposure to non-investment grade issuers that outperformed high grade issuers for the quarter.

Investment returns and principal value of an investment will fluctuate so that an investor's shares, when redeemed, maybe be worth more or less than their original cost. WisdomTree shares are bought and sold at market price (not NAV) and are not individually redeemed from the Fund. Total Returns are calculated using the daily 4:00 p.m. EST net asset value (NAV). Market price returns reflect the midpoint of the bid/ask spread as of the close of trading on the exchange where Fund shares are listed. Market price returns do not represent the returns you would receive if you traded shares at other times.

*Slippage in calculation comes from timing, treatment of accruals as well as compounding mathematical issues which cannot be perfectly calculated.

There are risks associated with investing, including possible loss of principal. Foreign investing involves special risks, such as risk of loss from currency fluctuation or political or economic uncertainty. Investments in emerging, offshore or frontier markets are generally less liquid and less efficient than investments in developed markets and are subject to additional risks, such as risks of adverse governmental regulation and intervention or political developments. Derivative investments can be volatile and these investments may be less liquid than other securities, and more sensitive to the effects of varied economic conditions.

Fixed income investments are subject to interest rate risk; their value will normally decline as interest rates rise. In addition when interest rates fall income may decline. Fixed income investments are also subject to credit risk, the risk that the issuer of a bond will fail to pay interest and principal in a timely manner, or that negative perceptions of the issuers ability to make such payments will cause the price of that bond to decline. Unlike typical exchange-traded funds, there is no index that the Fund attempts to track or replicate. Thus, the ability of the Fund to achieve its objective will depend on the effectiveness of the portfolio manager. Due to the investment strategy of this Fund it may make higher capital gain distributions than other ETFs. Please read the Fund's prospectus for specific details regarding the Fund's risk profile.
