In this episode, Byron talks to Jeff Lawson, the founder and current CEO of Twilia, a well-known American cloud communications platform as a service company whose communication services touch many of the most popular applications we use each day.

Listeners will hear about:

- What sparked Jeff's interest in entrepreneurship, beginning with his arrival at university during the 90s.
- After coming up with the idea for college lecture notes delivered over the internet, he got to work on making this idea a reality.
- Jeff's experience as Stub Hubs first Chief Technology Officer (CTO).
