Our Investment Philosophy

Our portfolio management process focuses on three potential sources of enhanced risk-adjusted returns relative to traditional market-cap benchmarks: asset allocation, quantitative factor tilts and security selection.

We expect that our top-down asset class views and factor tilts within asset classes will drive most of our relative performance. These tilts can include long-term strategic factor exposure that is consistent with WisdomTree and Professor Siegel's research (value, dividends, quality) and more dynamic factors that may evolve over time (size, growth, momentum, low volatility).

As we rely predominantly on enhanced index strategies to construct portfolios, the index rules/methodology will drive security selection. Therefore, WisdomTree's background as an index developer and ETF manager is critical to ensuring the security selection process achieves our desired investment exposures.

We leverage an open architecture model that incorporates both WisdomTree and third-party ETFs, allowing advisors to access a wide range of top-tier investment products without incurring additional strategist fees. Additionally, our ETF-focused approach helps to improve transparency, cost-efficiency and tax advantages—key components that enhancing clients' investment experience.

A Range of Portfolios Designed by Our Investment Committee

Launched in 2013, our CIO-Managed Model Portfolios have a proven track record of success over the past decade. We offer a diverse selection of Model Portfolios designed to meet various investment objectives.

Whether clients are seeking capital appreciation, steady income or capital preservation, we have tailored solutions that address different risk profiles.
